Students Get Technical

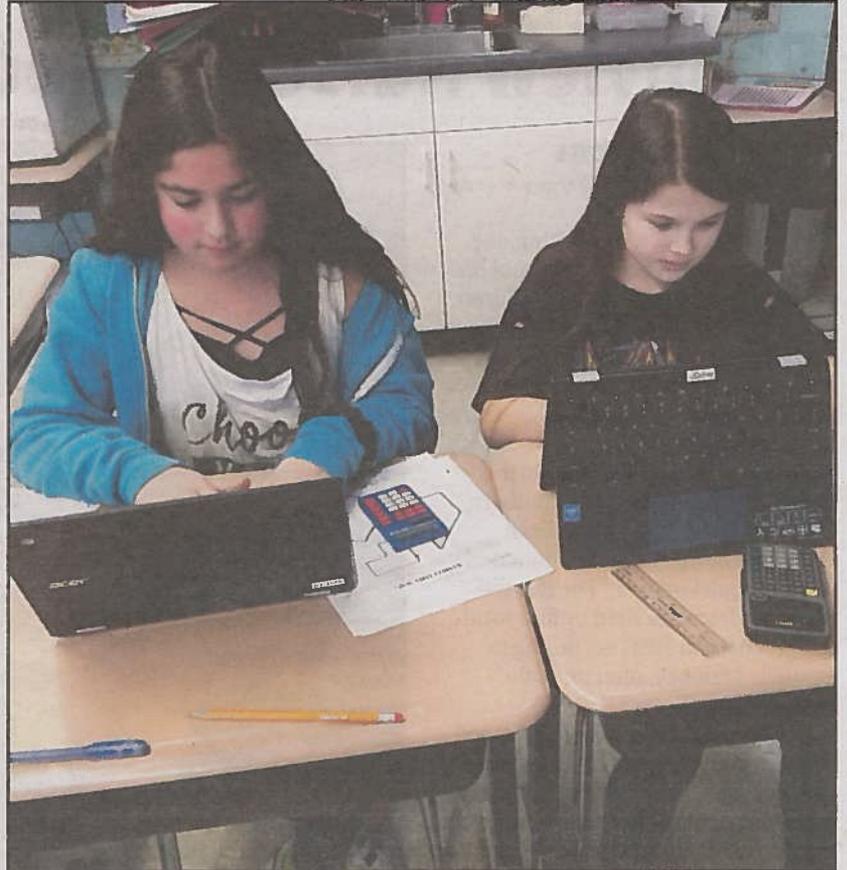

Plainview-Old Bethpage School District's H.B. Mattlin Middle School students recently received Google Chromebooks as part of the school's science, technology, engineering, arts and math (STEAM) initiative.

Students had the opportunity to personalize their desktops, begin research for non-fiction books they will be writing and participate in a math workshop on these new Chromebooks.

The STEAM initiative was adapted by the school to foster greater understanding and learning in the fields of science, technology, engineering, arts and math. The Chromebooks were given to students to push their learning into the digital age.
