at the "pit" had left the he time of the March 12

The Pentagon acknowledged for the first time in 1996 that the demolition work could have led to in-advertent exposure of U.S. troops to poison gases. Although there is no proof, some veterans believe these exposures may explain the mysterious Gulf War illnesses suffered by thousands.

The latest information about the demolition work near Khamisiyah was presented yesterday at a which was released in Washington.

The likelihood of the Khami-siyah demolition taking place in two days stems from CIA interviews with two soldiers who had conflicting reports on the amounts of munitions destroyed and a log entry indicating detonations took place on March 12, Walpole said in Salt Lake City.
